We measure our success by the accomplishments of our graduates and their contributions to the community.
I am honored to lead Middle Georgia State College as its first permanent president and excited about our bold, new future. The college is poised to realize its extraordinary potential with a powerful new vision that will provide our students with a vibrant, challenging intellectual environment. With five campuses in Macon, Cochran, Dublin, Eastman and Warner Robins, as well as numerous online learning opportunities, Middle Georgia State reaches far into the mid-state and beyond delivering leading edge degree programs to more than 8,100 students.

We are united in our mission of giving students a great learning experience and many enjoyable college memories. United, we stand for greatness that extends beyond orientation, progression and graduation. It stands for the preparation of sophisticated college graduates who are poised to be successful as they pursue their career goals. Additionally, we are on track to become a university within a few years, a step that will give us even greater opportunities to serve Middle Georgia and beyond.

Your choice to invest in Middle Georgia State speaks to your faith in the power of education, its significance to our community and its influence on our future. Your support makes a difference in the lives of our students each and every day as they aspire to learn, grow and leave well-prepared for a rewarding career.

I thank you for your warmth and welcome to me as your president. You have truly exemplified the truism of Southern hospitality.

Christopher Blake, Ph.D.
President

Middle Georgia State College prepares graduates for success.
Enthusiasm surrounds the arrival of the College’s new President, Dr. Christopher Blake with his exemplary record of educational accomplishments and engaging personality. We welcome his guidance, as he has the experience to not only strengthen the strong regional college that we already are, but the vision and know-how to see us grow into a university. Middle Georgia State College Foundation, Inc. pledges its support as we embark on this transformation.

As we move forward under new leadership, we do so with everyone as focused as ever on continuing the good work of those who have gone before us. Our organization exists to support Middle Georgia State College and the students it serves. We have worked diligently over many years to build a great reputation that affords us with a superior level of trust among those who support our cause.

We care about changing lives, we support students who strive to do that, and we honor those who empower students to further their education.

Your contributions can and do achieve extraordinary results. We invite you to turn to the pages of this report that contain the stories of four individuals whose lives were changed—or are continuing to be changed—by the programs or people at our college.

Middle Georgia State has extraordinary potential. We have, we are, and we will continue to serve and inspire people throughout Middle Georgia.

Thank you for all you have done for us, and we thank you for the many people whose lives you have helped to change.

Home-grown talent isn’t always easy to find. People grow up, and many want to leave and see the world. Some are able to, and do; some would like to, but can’t; some could, but prefer to stay at home.

Steve Bell had several opportunities to leave and not come back. A Middle Georgia native, he earned his associate’s degree in art from Middle Georgia State College, then transferred to the University of Georgia, where he earned his fine arts degree, only to return to Macon and continue his education in economics.

“After working for a printer for a couple of years I started a full-service advertising agency, and we’ve been doing that for about 20 years now,” he said. “Sometimes people ask why did you minor in economics? That doesn’t sound like someone who had a degree in fine arts. But the first thing that’s cut out of anybody’s budget is their advertising budget when the economy dips, so it’s good to have a really good, strong business background.”

Bell, who now has another business project—getting a new grocery store, Ocmulgee Traders, up and running in a new loft apartment complex in downtown Macon—saw not only the value of going to college close to home, but the educational advantages.

“Middle Georgia State prepares you so well,” said Bell. “It’s not a college that you can breeze through. You get a very good, strong education there, so when I was going away to UGA I was well prepared.”

Although Bell’s wife had worked previously in London and Chicago, and Bell had his own visions of one day working in Italy, “We decided that we wanted our business to be here.” He added, “It’s worked out great because Macon’s a wonderful place to raise a family.” And, in his view at least, Middle Georgia State is a great place to go to college.

“The college offers so many diversified tracks for your education. It may be everything you need is right there at that college. If you want to go into the medical field, the business field, the science field, it’s there. I think it’s a wonderful place to start school. One of the best things is that I think it’s economically advantageous to go to this university. It’s not a very expensive school but you get a very high quality education.”

When Shelby Giles was in the ninth grade, she had pneumonia and was hospitalized for several weeks. During that time, the nurses who cared for her left a lasting impression on this former Crawford County High School STAR student.

A few years later, she decided to attend Middle Georgia State College and major in math education. Not satisfied by the coursework, Shelby pondered her educational path and soon had a change of heart. The memories of the nurses who had cared for and been so kind to her kept coming back.

“When you’re sick, you don’t just want someone to come in and take care of you. You want someone to be your friend and make the experience better than it is,” she said. My nurses “would come in and hang out with me, get me out of the room and away from just watching TV all day.” So, as she pondered switching her college major, she remembered those medical friends and she knew. “I want to be one of those nurses!”

Currently in her sophomore year at Middle Georgia State receiving the Barbara J. Stickel Central Georgia Health System Endowed Presidential Scholarship in Nursing, Shelby admits that were it not for the financial assistance she has received from the Foundation, she might not be where she is today.

She said of the scholarship: “Not only does it make me capable of being able to go to school, it really is the sole reason of why I can go to school.” In her pre-college discussions with her parents, she realized that “it was a necessity that I get a scholarship because they could not afford for me to go to school. I mean, we would have tried to find a way, but the scholarship is really what makes it possible for me to go to school. It’s the reason I’m here right now.”

First Knight Gala and Silent Auction

In October 2013, MGSC Foundation, Inc. hosted the First Knight Gala to celebrate the start of a new era for Middle Georgia State College. The evening began with an exciting silent auction to benefit the college, after which guests enjoyed a wonderful night of dinner and dancing to the music of The Grapevine. The evening was a tremendous success, netting more than $45,000 for the college.

We appreciate the many friends and supporters who joined us to make the evening significant and meaningful. Special thanks to our sponsors whose generosity helped make the First Knight Gala possible: BB&T, ComSouth, Macon Occupational Medicine, Central Georgia Health System, Coliseum Health System, Georgia Duplicating Products, and State Bank & Trust Company.
“Your contributions can, and do, achieve extraordinary results.”
There comes a day in every student’s life—maybe it happened when he or she was 5 years old, or 15, or 20—when a decision is made that points that individual in a particular career direction. Some students—many, actually—have not yet settled on a path when they enter the age of adulthood. Lenora Green was one such student.

Even before graduating from Southeast High School in Macon, Lenora knew a college education would lead to a better career, but she needed help. “I started singing in high school, but I didn’t know exactly where to go.” Lenora struggled with the decision of whether or not to leave home after graduation and decided to stay and attend Middle Georgia State College. “I found music there,” she said. Specifically, she found music instructor Rebecca Lanning. “She was like, ‘Let’s teach this girl how to sing.’”

Lenora was given instruction and encouraged to enter vocal competitions. “I started with a second place, and it all just grew from there,” she said.

Middle Georgia State gave way to Shorter College, then the University of Michigan for another degree, then Indiana University for her performance diploma. This young woman who just “sang” in high school had become an accomplished opera singer, participated in young artists programs and landed one of her first positions with the Detroit Opera Theater. Positions in Florida and New York followed.

One connection led to another and today she is the artist in residence at the Stax Music Academy, as well as at LeMoyne-Owen College, both in Memphis, Tennessee. She went to Stax to help under-privileged children. Although Lenora very much remains a performer, she is also a mentor, working with Opera Memphis and its outreach program for children.

“I’m here, teaching kids voice and how to sing and get acclimated to the classical side of singing—and getting them ready for college themselves,” she said. Now she’s helping young people make life decisions—the same kinds of decisions that opened up her career path with the guidance and encouragement she got from teachers and educators at Middle Georgia State College. “Miss Lanning was a great recruiter,” Lenora said. “I just needed to stay in music, and the fact that Middle Georgia State had a music program helped me to keep going.” Now, and well into the future, she’ll be improving the lives of others, providing the same kind of nurturing that she received in her home town in Middle Georgia.

I found music at Middle Georgia State College.

As a high school star baseball player in Warner Robins in the early 1980s, Kal Daniels had options about where he would go to college. One of his options was to accept a full athletic scholarship to UCLA, or he could accept offers from a couple of Georgia junior colleges.

“At that time, a high school baseball coach told me that Middle Georgia State College was a great avenue,” Daniels said. Even though UCLA is a good school, it is a long way from home, family and friends.

That was a great choice, said Daniels, who was drafted out of college and into Major League Baseball, playing many years at the sport’s highest level. “I came down here to Cochran and I really enjoyed my experience.”

He admits that while athletics opened the door to college, it did not define him. He said the guidance and knowledge about life that he learned from his coaches played a big part in his journey into adulthood.

“Even right now, when I’m training kids, I tell people the most beneficial experience I had was in college—not in pro ball, but in college. The camaraderie, being able to learn, to grow up and become an adult, it’s exciting. I tell people that if I could’ve come back for another year before I turned pro—if I could turn back the hands of time—I would have come back to Middle Georgia State College.”

His pro baseball career took him around the United States many times, and to foreign countries as well, but there was always a strong connection back home. It’s a connection that was as strong then as it is today—Daniels operates a youth baseball academy in his hometown of Warner Robins.

“I met people from all around the world,” he said, “and I go back to my roots. I tell people all the time it’s not where you start, it’s where you finish. And Cochran is where I started. This college is a great opportunity. It’s a springboard to who knows?”
